

The Calgary Buyer Report

What's selling, what's not, and what to offer. Based on August 2026 data, published September 2026.

$569,800 Benchmark price down 1.1% from last year	1,660 Sales in August down 16.4% from last year	41 days Average days to sell up 3 days from last year	3.9 Months of supply balanced market
---	--	--	---

What the numbers say

Fewer homes are selling, and the ones that do take longer. Sales fell 16.4% from last year while new listings fell 9.7%, so buyers have more choice than they did a year ago. Prices have mostly held steady overall, but that hides big differences by home type.

Prices and days to sell by home type

Home type	Benchmark price	Change vs. last year	Days to sell
Detached	$744,300	down 1.1%	35
Semi-detached	$690,500	up 1.0%	40
Townhouse / row	$415,200	down 5.4%	47
Apartment condo	$295,400	down 8.2%	52

Days to sell, by home type

Detached	35 days
Semi-detached	40 days
Townhouse / row	47 days
Apartment condo	52 days

What this means if you are buying

Condos and townhomes: more room to negotiate. Apartment condos have about 5.7 months of supply, well above the 3.9 citywide, and both condos and row homes take longer to sell and have lower prices than a year ago. Listings that have been sitting are the ones where an offer below asking is most likely to be heard.

Detached homes: less room. They sell fastest at 35 days and prices are close to flat. Expect to compete more on terms and speed than on price.

Semi-detached: in between. Prices are up 1% from last year and homes take 40 days to sell.

Overall: balanced, not a seller's market. At 3.9 months of supply, neither buyers nor sellers have a clear edge. What matters is the specific home and how long it has been listed.

Before you make an offer: 6 questions to answer

1. How long has this home been listed, and has the price changed? Days on market is the best clue to how flexible a seller is.
2. What did similar homes on the same street or in the same building sell for in the last 90 days? Sold prices matter more than asking prices.
3. What is the gap between asking price and sold price for this type of home?
4. What is your all-in monthly cost, including condo fees, property tax, insurance, and utilities?
5. Which conditions do you need: financing, inspection, condo document review?
6. Is your mortgage pre-approval current, and does it cover this price?

Want this for your area and budget?

Tell me the part of Calgary, the type of home, and your price range. I'll send you recent sold prices, days on market, and a suggested offer range for the homes you're looking at. Free, no obligation.

Mindy Chattha, REALTOR®, CENTURY 21 Bamber Realty Ltd.
(403) 966-0921 | mindy@mindychattha.ca | mindychattha.com

Source: CREB, August 2026 (citywide benchmark prices, sales, listings, days on market, months of supply). Condo months of supply reported in a September 2026 market summary. Figures describe the whole city and each home type; they do not predict the price of any specific home. This report is general information, not financial or legal advice. If you already have a written agreement with another real estate professional, this is not a solicitation. Mindy Chattha is a REALTOR® registered with the Real Estate Council of Alberta (RECA) and a licensee of CENTURY 21 Bamber Realty Ltd.